JONES ADVENTURES' CLIENTS
 FROM OUR 2014 GORILLA TRIP

“It was an amazing trip! Beyond our expectations.”

We are planning our next African adventure and welcome your interest and thoughts. This safari takes you into the heart of Africa, in Uganda. The long time practice for safaris has been to have seemingly lavish accommodations with outlandish prices attached. We break that old pattern by using a combination of safari tents and economical motel lodgings. Our safari tent accommodations are not air conditioned, but they are comfortable and they place you on safari in really good locations at a good price.

The 2014 trip took place in July and August (part of the dry season); please keep in mind that Uganda is located at the equator (passing through southern Uganda) so other than rainy and dry seasons the weather doesn't change drastically. The average annual temperature is about 26°C (78°F). Uganda's rainy seasons are generally from March until May and October until November. Dry seasons are from December to February and June to August.

While this is titled a gorilla trip, we saw as much wildlife as was possible, while we were there.
